For thirty years public and private schools in the State have awarded thousands of certificates to World Language students who have participated in the Poetry Recitation Contests sponsored by the Connecticut Council of Language Teachers (CT COLT), an organization composed of language teachers from most schools in Connecticut.

This year's event is hosted by Bristol Eastern High School in Bristol. Approximately 730 students from 74 schools will compete in 17 languages including American Sign Language (ASL), Ancient Greek, Arabic, Mandarin Chinese, English Language Learners (ESOL/ELL), French, German, Modern Greek, Hebrew, Italian, Japanese, Korean, Latin, Polish, Portuguese, Russian and Spanish.

Students prepare in their home schools: middle schools and high schools. Poems for Middle School and Level HS1 will have between 10 – 20 lines. All other levels will have no less than 14 nor more than 30 lines. Students will be judged in four areas: memorization, diction, interpretation, and body language. Latin and Ancient Greek poetry must be recited according to the classical metrics. In some of the languages, student selected poems from a predetermined slate while in other languages student were free to select a poem of their choice. The following categories will be judged: Middle School, beginning and continuing; High School levels 1-6; Native Speakers (MS and HS) for students of Arabic, Mandarin Chinese, French, German, Modern Greek, Hebrew, Italian, Japanese, Latin, Polish, Portuguese, Russian and Spanish. Latin and Ancient Greek students do not have the latter category. There are only native speaker categories (Middle School and High School) for Korean. American Sign Language students include hearing and hearing impaired anywhere from one year to three years or more. ESOL students include high-beginner, intermediate and advanced for MS and HS. There will be up to three prizes for each level of each language. All participants are awarded certificates of participation. The middle school and high school with the most winners each receive a plaque to be displayed in their schools.

Andrea Rajotte, WL Department Head at Bristol Eastern High School, is the chairperson of this year's event. She is confident that it will be the greatest ever because of the ardent support of the language teachers and the enthusiasm of the students. The event will take place on April 26th at the Bristol Eastern High School at 3:00 p.m. Please join us for the 31st CT COLT Poetry Recitation Contest.
